

Abstract

An apparatus for generating a search report of combined data, the apparatus including a processor, a formatter coupled to the processor, the formatter formatting combined data into text data in a first format and into numerical/tabular data in a second format and storing each in storage, a search module executing on the processor, the search module searching the text data and mapping the located text data to correlated numerical/tabular data, or the search module searching the numerical/tabular data and mapping the located numerical/tabular data to correlated text data and a report module executing on the processor, the report module integrating the located and correlated text and numerical/tabular data into a report.